Combat Vehicles Division

Objective

The primary objectives of the Combat Vehicles Division of NDIA are to:

• Enhance the security of the United States by promoting communications and interaction between defense industry and government in the area of combat vehicle activities.

• Serve as an effective communications vehicle for the exchange of views and information between government and industry on matters of common concern.

• Foster mutual understanding and effective working relationships between government and industry in order to achieve a sound body of government policy and procedures which will serve both the security objectives of the United States as well as the commercial interests of its industry.

• Provide government with industry advice on government policies, practices and procedures and industry’s needs and problems within the Divisions purview.

• Promote natural exchanges between the Defense Department, government agencies and industry, of information relating to the design, development, acquisition and support of vehicles and vehicle systems employed in land and amphibious military operations.
The reality of reduced military spending continues to be felt throughout the combat vehicle community, particularly as the orientation from the possibility of a major war in Europe to that of response to multiple and varied contingencies becomes more clearly focused. Major programs, force size, the relative mix of active and reserve components, and operating tempo are all affected. Meanwhile, the Army is moving toward its Force XXI posture. This conference will focus on the impact of Force XXI on the combat vehicle community with concentration on the key elements of mobility, lethality and survivability.
